Western Receives Grant For 5th Summer Science Program For High School Pupils

Western has been awarded a grant of $22,535 by the National Science Foundation, Washington, D.C. for the purpose of conducting a fifth "Summer Science Training Program for High School Students", according to Dr. Kelly Thompson, president of the college.

Dr. Thompson announced this latest grant following notification by Dr. Alan T. Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation.

Two weeks ago Western was awarded a grant of $94,790 by the NSF for the fifth summer institute and sixth in-service institute for science and mathematics teachers in the high schools of Kentucky.

The summer institute will be held during the 1963 summer session at Western and the in-service institute will be held during the 1963-64 academic year.

Grants Total $422,641

The grant of $22,535 is the 19th grant received by Western from the National Science Foundation since 1958. Total amount of the 19 grants is $422,641.

Approximately 80 high-ability students from Kentucky schools will be accepted to participate in the program which will be held during the 1963 summer session at Western from June 10 through August 2.

The project is designed for students who have completed the junior year in high school, but who have had limited experiences in science and mathematics. In cases of special need, high school seniors may be accepted. Information concerning the program will be mailed to high schools throughout the state early next month.

Object of Program to Find Top Potential

Objectives of the program are to help identify students who have excellent potential for becoming scientists and to accelerate these students' scholarly achievement through providing the opportunity for instruction in scientific content by scientists of recognized stature.

The program is also designed to further develop cooperation between Western and the high schools of the state in increasing the quality of education in the sciences.

Western conducted the first program of this type in Kentucky during the 1959 summer session, and similar programs have been conducted in successive summers. Dr. Tate C. Page, head of Western's department of education, will again serve as director of the program.

U Of K Graduate School Offering Assistantships

Dr. John C. Redman, Professor of Agriculture Economics, University of Kentucky Graduate School, announced that there are assistantships available paying $200.00 per month to those working on their Master's Degree, $250.00 per month is paid to those working on the Ph.D. Degree, after having been granted the Master's Degree.

No particular prerequisites are required but the applicants must be good students. Dr. Redman stated that the Graduate School prefers to have well balanced students, rather than specialists.

While visiting on the Western campus on December 11 and 12, Dr. Redman interviewed many prospective graduate students in the Agriculture Department, Mathematics Department, Department of Economics and Sociology and the Department of Government, outlining opportunities available at U. K. Graduate School.

Former Faculty Member

Any student who did not have the opportunity to talk with Dr. Redman, can contact him at: University of Kentucky, Department of Agriculture and Economics. This is the first time that Dr. Redman has had the opportunity to visit Western.

ORATORICAL CONTEST

The SNEA Oratorical Contest will be held Monday, January 14, at 3:00 p.m. in Snell Hall Auditorium.

Western's Home Economics Department is able to provide a much broader range of practical training for its students since the department recently occupied this well-equipped home management house. Approximately $10,000 went into the remodeling of this former dwelling. The renovation included the installation of entirely new heating and electrical systems, the construction of five apartments for girls who occupy the house as part of their training, and the conversion of the garage into an up-to-date dining hall.

Delta Sigmas Win TV Set

The Delta Sigma Delta fraternity was the winner of a 23-inch Admiral wide angle console T.V. set in the first semester's college brand round-up contest, sponsored by the makers of Philip Morris cigarettes.

The T.V. set, first prize in the contest, was presented shortly after the close of the contest on Wednesday, December 12, by Mr. Bill Haedler, Philip Morris representative for this area. The presentation was made at Kirby lectured a total of 4,512 empty packs were turned in and counted.

The fraternity, which consists of 12 actives and six pledges, collected a total of 4,512 empty packs of either Philip Morris, Marlboro Alpine or Parliament cigarettes, to win the contest.

Virgil Hall, student representative for the contest, stated that the Delta Sigma Delta fraternity was the only group to enter the contest this semester. Hall also said that another contest will begin shortly after the beginning of the second semester and that stiffer competition for the prizes is expected.

Dean Reports

College Advancing In Many Respects

Highlights of the past year were presented by Dr. Raymond L. Cravens at the annual Christmas luncheon held in the Paul L. Garrett Student Center dining room at noon on Wednesday, December 19.

The entire faculty and staff were present for the festive occasion held each year just prior to the beginning of the Christmas holidays.

President Kelly Thompson presided at the luncheon. He introduced Douglas Keen, Scottsville, and Maxey Harlin, Bowling Green, members of the Board of Regents who attended.

An unusual event occurred when Dr. Gordon Wilson's name was drawn for the 30-pound turkey given as a door prize. Both Dr. Wilson Sr. and Dr. Wilson Jr. were present but the name drawn did not designate which was the winner. Thus the father and son combination split the turkey.

Dean Cravens then presented his report which follows in its entirety:

"For my brief remarks today, I have been assigned the subject of measurement. There are many ways that we could measure our year's work, just as we could in many ways measure this faculty meeting, but what I want to do briefly this afternoon is to look at the instructional program of the College and try to give you some measure of its progress.

Statistics Indicate Progress

"Let me give to you briefly some statistics which are indicative of progress. First, let us look at the area of the faculty. As of this moment we have 197 full-time faculty members. We also have 14 librarians who qualify as members of the faculty under the definitions handed down to us by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. In addition to these we have 42 people who teach part-time for the College, and when we add up all of the hours that they teach we have the equivalent of 12 full-time faculty members. By adding these three categories we see that the College now has 223 full-time faculty equivalents.

52 Hold Ph. D. Degree

"In this group there are 52 individuals who hold the Ph.D. degree and there are 18 other individuals who have all work completed for their doctorate except their dissertations.

"The faculty is well qualified and many degrees intermediate to the doctorate are held by our faculty. During this year the faculty has increased its interest in research. The appointment of the Research Committee is important in this regard, and the College hopes that in the future research will be an expanding activity among our faculty.

"Second, we should look for just a moment at the instructional program and its progress. In the

NOTICE

Pre-registration for seniors and graduate students will be conducted today. This will enable students thus classified to enroll in courses they need for graduation.

The juniors, sophomores and freshmen will register on Wednesday and Thursday, January 30-31.

A UNIQUE ROOF is about to be placed over the $2.5 million Academic-Athletic Building. The roof, termed a "bicycle wheel" type, will be supported by 36 steel trusses, each 136 feet long and 8 feet high, plus 72 cables similar to those used in suspension bridges. The lower of two steel rings, which will form the hub of the wheel, can be seen atop posts which will be removed when the roof is in place. Thirty-six steel and concrete columns at the perimeter of the building form the rim of the wheel. The roof will cover the huge building containing 5,716,272 cubic feet.

Years Of Progress

By Douglas L. Verdier

As another year dawns on the Western campus, the signs of progress may be clearly seen etched across the face of the Hilltop.

During the past few years, a veritable "building boom" has been in evidence everywhere on the more than 140 acres comprising the campus of Western Kentucky State College. It is almost impossible for students to travel anywhere on the campus and not be confronted with evidence of progress.

Rapid expansion has not been confined to the present generation of students. A similar building-boom erupted on the Hill in 1925 and continued at a spectacular pace until 1932. During that seven-year period, the Library, the Training School, the gymnasium, home economics building, and West Hall (now called White-stone) were constructed, and the expansion was felt in academic and financial areas as well as student life. This period of progress also marked the ascension of a small two-year normal school to one of the nation's recognized institutions of higher learning.

Growth from 1932 has been steady and consistent. Cherry Hall was opened in 1937, the Music Building in 1938, and the Kentucky Building in 1939.

Following a relatively dormant period during World War II, Western emerged strong and again began building. In 1949, Potter Hall was converted to a men's dormitory and McLean Hall for women was opened.

The beautiful Paul L. Garrett Student Center was dedicated in 1952.

The "building bug" attacked Western once again in 1955, Western's Golden Anniversary, and has been around ever since. The stately pylon was erected that year at the main entrance to the campus to commemorate fifty years of progress.

In 1957, two new men's dormitories, East Hall and South Hall (now known as North Hall), were opened for occupancy in January. During the early spring of that year, an addition was begun to the Administration Building to house the Business Office. The new additions made necessary the expansion of the Heating Plant and Maintenance Service Building, and this work was also completed during 1957. With the coming of fall, Potter Hall was converted to a woman's dormitory and as 1957 drew to a close, Western was still planning future expansion.

The New Residence Hall for Women was completed in 1960, and in the same year, plans were being made for the construction of a $1,500,000 science building and an additional men's dorm.

September, 1961, saw the dedication of the Kelly Thompson Science Hall and the opening of the new dorm and grill on 16th Street. Although enrollment conditions made it necessary to use the new dorm for women students, it is now used as a men's dormitory.

Last year began with the dedication of the college laundrette in January. In September, the opening of the six-story residence hall for women marked another first in the history of the college—elevators. Now, with an eye on a still larger and better Western, construction is underway on an 11-story dormitory for men which, when completed, will be the tallest building in the city of Bowling Green. Plans are also underway for the construction of a four-story women's dorm to be located perpendicular to the recently opened six-story structure.

Not too far removed from the residence hall areas is construction of a different nature. The giant $2.9 million Academic-Athletic Building, which will house the E. A. Diddle Arena with a maximum seating capacity of 13,000, plus a smaller gymnasium, olympic size swimming pool, 30 master classrooms, and a portable stage, is scheduled for completion by September, 1963. When completed, the structure will be one of the largest buildings of its type in the United States.

Tomorrow, Western will take another giant step in the direction of improved education as ground is broken for the new $403,000 cooperative elementary school, which will be located on the Old Russellville Road.

The reasons for this expansion and improvement are many, however, they all are aimed at one main objective—to give you, the student, opportunity and facilities for acquiring the finest education available.

RIGHT HERE—Mrs. Patricia Basham, secretary, points out to Mr. Hubert P. Griffin, director of housing at Western, the fact that Western is expected to increase its housing facilities from 583 in 1959 to 2913 by the fall of 1963. The 500 per cent increase in facilities includes the new 11 story dorm for men which will house 416 persons.

Housing Office Kept Busy Finding Rooms For Students

By Jim West

The Office of Housing, a function of the Office of the Dean of Students, was established on January 1, 1962, by President Kelly Thompson.

The housing program here at Western includes six residence halls for men accommodating Room rent for next semester now due at Housing office.

Mr. H. P. Griffin, director of housing, has responsibility for receiving and processing applications for all on-campus housing, including married housing, and giving direction to the program up through the assignment to a residence hall, or in the case of married students, a cottage or trailer space. Off-campus housing, which involves survey, inspection, placement, and occasionally follow-up consultation with the landlord of a residence during the school year, is also the responsibility of the director of housing. Mr. Griffin is assisted by his secretary, Mrs. Pat Basham, 902 persons and five residence halls for women housing 1167 persons. Each residence hall is under the supervision of a full-time resident director.

Future plans include a new 11-story air-conditioned residence hall for men which will house 416 persons. Plans call for its completion by September, 1963. Construction of a sixth hall for women housing 226 persons is to get underway at an early date. This new dormitory will be located on the Kentucky Building grounds as a second unit of a three unit plan. The third unit of this plan will be completed and ready for use no later than September, 1965.

By the opening of the fall term in September, 1963, Western will have eight new residence halls, all erected since 1956. The capacity will have increased from 583 to 2913 in 1963, an increase of 500 per cent. The College is making a maximum effort to provide adequate student housing for the ever-increasing enrollment.

After 100 Years

Campus Retains Small Reminder Of Civil War

By Bob Newsome

One hundred years after the smoke of battle has cleared, Western still retains a small piece of the Civil War. The old fort, trenches through which students pass every day, was once the scene of great activity.

During the early part of the Civil War, Confederate General Albert Sidney Johnston was given command of the western armies of the South. It was his duty to protect the South from invading Union armies in the Midwest.

His plan was to establish a defensive line from the border of West Virginia to the Kansas border of Missouri—roughly a thousand miles. Bowling Green was to be an important point on this line. To protect Bowling Green, Johnston sent General Simon B. Buckner, a Kentuckian, here in September of 1861.

Buckner immediately started on the construction of fortifications and the recruitment of troops. At first, the only danger to the southern troops was their own rowdiness. The young country boys enjoyed their new-found freedom from the farm by drinking and loose living. Buckner put an end to this by keeping them busy building the fort now located on the Hill, then known as Vinegar Hill. The men were too busy working during the day and too tired during the night to do any cavorting. Thus the main reason for the fort was to keep the men out of trouble.

Fort Abandoned

On February 14 and 15, 1862, Bowling Green was abandoned by the Confederates, whose whole defensive line was crumbling at all points. The Union troops moved

Kentucky Building News

An unusual collection of rare, old medical books which were used by early Kentucky physicians has been presented to the Kentucky Library by Dr. L. O. Toomey of Bowling Green.

The publishing dates of the books range from 1743-1827. Included in the collection are the Memories of Daniel Drake, M.D., by Edward D. Mansfield, and the Autobiography of Charles Caldwell, M.D. These men were two of Kentucky's most noted early physicians who taught in the Transylvania Medical School at Lexington. The September edition in the bound volume of the 1819 Eclectic Repository magazine contains an article written by Dr. Ephraim McDowell, a noted Kentucky surgeon from Danville. All the books are bound in calf and engraved in gold lettering.

These books have been placed on special display in the Kentucky Library.

Dr. Toomey, a graduate of Western, served in the Navy in World War II, spending 21 months of his time in the South Pacific. At the time of his discharge, he ranked as a commander. In addition to his private practice duties, he has served as Warren County Health Officer since his appointment in 1958.

Linen Exchange Night Brings Anxious Moments

By Barbara Sharp

For a great many years it has been the practice at Western to have weekly exchange of linen in the dorms. It would seem that even freshmen should quickly become accustomed to this simple procedure and thus complete it in a quick and orderly manner.

But this is not the case.

The event is dreaded by the counselors who must work linen exchange and by each dorm resident.

The counselors dislike the trouble of keeping an accurate count of the sheets and pillowcases and the confusion involved when everyone decides to bring linen down at the same time.

Consider, though, the plight of the student.

A girl in one of the dorms suddenly realizes that it is linen-exchange night. Seeing that it is nearly seven o'clock, time for the exchange to be over, she dumps the contents of her bed — including three books, her open purse, several curlers, a freshly ironed blouse, and two stuffed animals — on the floor, stuffs off a sheet, tears down the hall, runs into the counselor, and reaches the elevator just after it has left. Finally arriving downstairs, she finds she has forgotten her pillowcase.

At 6:59 p.m. she reappears and calmly hands her linen to the counselor in charge. With her breath regained and the harrowing experience over for another week, she decides to celebrate with a coke. In the concession room she is the victim of a slight accident — she bumps into a girl and coke dribbles down her clean linens.

Then there is the girl who would never be caught in such a pinch for time. She goes down early — even before the exchange starts and stands in line for twenty minutes waiting to exchange the linens of three girlfriends. She won't be the victim of heart failure; at least, not until she gets back to her room and discovers she has forgotten her own linens.

Extreme cases, you may say, but actually such happenings are fairly common on the worst night of the week in the form—linen exchange night!

IVAN DAVIS, pianist, will appear in the second of a series of Community Concert Association programs tomorrow, in Van Meter Auditorium, at 8 p.m. A 1940 winner of the Franz Liszt piano competition, Davis has appeared with several major symphonies, recorded two best seller albums of piano music, and made several successful concert tours since that time. Wherever he has appeared, he has received only rave notices, which are not easy to achieve in this day when so many young keyboard performers are trying to make the grade and become top-flight pianists. Western students will be admitted to the concert by showing their student I.D. cards at the door.

LARRY DYKES, Sports Editor

An almost packed house of 6,000 fans looked on last Wednesday night as the Hilltoppers of Coach Diddle lost a heartbreaker to Vanderbilt in Nashville.

On no one individual or no one play can the blame of the loss be laid. For the few of us who saw the game will readily agree that a combination of bad passes, lost balls, missed free throws and tip-ins, and a few disputed calls by the officials were all instrumental in the defeat.

The Toppers fought hard and gallantly coming from eight points behind to tie the game with 36 seconds remaining. Vandy called time out and then played for the last shot as soph Reppe Schurig knocked the bottom out with only three seconds left in the game.

Western quickly called time out with one second left. Jim Dunn threw the ball the length of the court hoping for a tip-in that would have tied the game, but the pass was deflected and senior forward Bobby Jackson could not recover it in time to get off a shot!

The Toppers will host a favored Murray team Saturday night. The Racers are looking for their first OVC championship since 1950-51 and have been rated the pre-season favorite to finish atop the league this year. Led by 6-6, junior center Jim Jennings, who last year as a soph ranked seventh nationally in rebounding as he pulled down 431 recoveries. The Racers' hopes are also being boosted by Gene Pendleton, who led the University of Tennessee freshmen in 1961 with a 28-point game average. Murray is hoping to improve their last year's OVC record of 5 wins and 7 losses.

Worst Defeat in 17 Years

The Falcons of Bowling Green, O. not only handed the Toppers their worst defeat in 17 years 83-58, but also broke a 27-game home floor winning streak against all opposition, but the Topper Club still leads in the series with the Falcons 16 victories against 7 for Bowling Green. The last team to defeat the Toppers at home was Xavier in 1960, when they downed the Hilltoppers 82-73.

Dilorenzo Wins Men's Handball Championship

Dilorenzo, an Independent, beat Kenney, of the Pershing Rifles, 11-9, and 11-9, in the best two-out-of-three games to claim the crown. Both finalists were selected as members on the All-Western Intramural Team.

Murray And SIU Invade Home Court

Western will face two veteran ball clubs within the next week when the Hilltoppers face Murray State and Southern Illinois University.

Murray, the pre-season favorite for the Ohio Valley Conference title, has seven lettermen returning, plus a fine group of sophomores and a couple of transfers that are making some of the regulars of last year work hard for their positions. Led by 6-6 junior center Jim Jennings, the Racers have a 6-2 record (through Jan. 4). Ironically, their best showing to date came in their first loss of the season, a 79-78 setback at the hands of Bradley's Braves at Peoria, Ill.

Jennings Leads Scorers

Head Coach Cal Luther admits that his club has the potential to be an OVC title contender and the team's early season performances has impressed him. Jennings leads the Racers in scoring with a 19.7 average and is second among national rebound leaders with an average of 19 per game. Other double-digit scorers on the team are guards Scott Schlosser (13.9) and Al Varnas (13.4). Both are 6-2 juniors.

Gene Pendleton, a transfer from the University of Tennessee, is averaging seven points per game. He led the Volunteer freshmen in scoring in 1961 with a 28-point average.

Southern Illinois will face the Hilltoppers with a team made of nine lettermen veterans and a "rookie" coach. The Salukis also have a couple of top-notch junior college transfers that have helped give the squad needed depth.

Coach Jack Hartman, formerly of Coffeyville (Kans.) Junior College, succeeded NBA veteran Harry Gallatin at the SIU coaching helm when Gallatin left last spring to take over as head man for the St. Louis Hawks.

He immediately guided the Salukis to one of their biggest-ever victories, a 73-66 triumph over highly-regarded St. Bonaventure.

A GUIDE FOR THE UNMONEYED

R. L. Sigafos was a keen, ambitious lad, and when he finished high school he wished mightily to go on with his education. It seemed, however, a forlorn hope. R. L.'s father could not send the boy to college because a series of crop failures had brought him to the brink of disaster. (R. L.'s father raised orchids which, in North Dakota, is a form of agriculture fraught with risk.)

It was, therefore, squarely up to R. L. He could go to college only if he worked his way through. This was a prospect that dismayed him. He had a deep-seated fear that the task would be too great, that he would never be able to carry on a full, busy college life and still find time to do odd jobs and make money.

Racked with misgivings, R. L. paced the streets, pondering his dilemma. One day, walking and brooding, he came upon a park bench and sat down and lit a Marlboro cigarette. R. L. always lit a Marlboro when he was low in his mind. R. L. also always lit a Marlboro when he was merry. The fact is there is no occasion—happy or sad, pensive or exuberant, cheery or solemn—when Marlboro with its fine filter and fine flavor is not entirely welcome, as you will discover when you go to your favorite tobacconist and buy some, as we—the makers of Marlboro and I and R. L. Sigafos—hope you will do real soon.

Sitting and thinking and smoking a Marlboro on the park bench, R. L. was suddenly interrupted by a small, quavering voice which said, "My boy, you are troubled. Can I help?"

I gave a fencing lesson to the Dean of Women

Seated beside R. L. was a tiny, gnarled man with wispy, snow-white hair. His skin was almost transparent, showing a delicate tracery of fragile bones beneath. His back was bent, and his hands trembled. But his eyes were bright and clear. R. L. looked into those eyes, into the wrinkled face. He saw wisdom there, and experience, and kindness. "Do you think, sir," said R. L., "that a boy can work his way through college and still enjoy a rich, full campus life?"

"Why, bless you, son," replied the stranger with a rheumy chuckle, "of course you can. In fact, I did it myself."

"Was it very hard?" asked R. L.

"Yes, it was hard," the stranger admitted. "But when one is young, all things are possible. I, for example, used to get up at five o'clock every morning to stoke the furnace at the SAE house. At six I had to milk the ewes at the school of animal husbandry. At seven I gave a fencing lesson to the Dean of Women. At eight I had a class in early Runie poets. At nine I gave haircuts at the Gamma Phi Beta house. At ten I had differential calculus. At eleven I posed for a life class. At twelve I watered soup at the Union. At one I had a class in Oriental languages. At two I exercised the mice in psych lab. At three I gave the Dean of Women another fencing lesson. At four I had qualitative analysis. At five I went clamming. At six I cut meat for the football team. At seven I ushered at the movies. At eight I had my ears pierced so that at nine I could tell fortunes in a gypsy tearoom. At ten I had a class in astronomy. At eleven I tucked in the football team. At twelve I studied and at three I went to sleep."

"Sir," cried R. L., "I am moved and inspired by your shining example!"

"It was nothing," said the stranger modestly, shaking his frail white head. "It was just hard work, and hard work never hurt anybody."

"Would you mind telling me, sir," said R. L., "how old you are now?"

"Twenty-two," said the stranger.

College's Progress Reported

Last three years we have added academic majors in Spanish, German, Economics, Government, Psychology and Business Management. Also, important course additions in practically every department of the College have been achieved. Two new subject areas—philosophy and Russian language have been recently added to the curricula. Moreover, we are planning to inaugurate in September of this year a. Associate Degree Program in Nursing which will be a very important addition to the total curricular offerings of this institution.

Community College

"Not the least of the important developments in the academic area has been the development and the growth of the Community College Division—the evening class program—where we still have expanded services to develop for the people of this geographic area. In addition to this I feel that the improved general education program in all our degree programs has far-reaching significance. The prospect of continued attention to the strengthening of this program is one of ahead.

Instructional Budget Boosted

"Third, let us look for just a moment at the instructional budget for this is certainly an important indicator of progress. This year, 1962-63, we are spending $467,000 more for instruction than we spent last year and, we are spending $38,917 more for our library. This gives us a total expenditure for instruction of over $2,000,000 and for the library of over $150,000. These budgetary levels indicate that great budgetary progress has been made.

Self-Study

"Another development very significant to the progress of our College is the completion of the Self-Study in which we were engaged for two years. Because of the positive evaluation given the College by the Visitation Committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, we feel that we have an outstanding and objective Self-Study. Now we must turn to the implementation of the Self-Study recommendations. We have already made considerable progress in this regard. The Faculty Rank Committee is hard at work on the problem of the establishment of a ranking system; we have appointed a Committee on Class attendance which is studying this knotty problem; the Teacher Education Committee has recommended to the Committee on Curriculum and Instruction policies for admission to and retention in teacher education, and a representative is studying the tenure policies of institutions across the country holding to make recommendations to the College for the establishment of official tenure policies at Western.

Scholarship

"Another important Committee has as its assignment the determination of ways the College may better recognize scholarship, and a committee appointed to study the major-minor options is presently beginning its work. Recently a sub-committee recommended to the Committee on Curriculum and Instruction, which subsequently adopted its recommendation, that a freshman honor colloquium should be established at Western to become effective next semester.

"Moreover, the College now has under consideration a new class schedule plan which seems to have great advantages over our present schedule. This plan, which we are calling the "Bi-Term Semester Schedule" will be tried experimentally in several courses next semester and may be put into operation for the total College at the beginning of the fall semester, 1963.

"All of the progress which I have outlined briefly here is not an attempt on the part of the College to boast about what has happened. This is rather a year-end inventory—an inventory which we hope will enable us to set new objectives for the year ahead. I have tried to present to you a status report, a status report of where Western's continuing progress is at this moment. With this well in mind, I hope that all of us will unite our efforts for continued progress of even greater scope."

Management House Changes Occupants

The girls are requested to have one major function per week and carry on other household duties. During religious emphasis week, the girls held a coffee in honor of Dr. Eric C. Rust. Plans are now being made for the decoration of the house for Christmas.

New Occupants

The girls presently living in the Home Management House are as follows: Janet Brewer, Bardstown; Sally Greer, Morgantown; Lona Talley, Marion; Ann Davenson, Rochester; Janice Embury, Caneyville; Verda Pogue, Beech Creek; Opal Bowles, Glasgow; Doris Tyler, Harrodsburg; Faye Colvin, Campbellsville; and Linda Willis, Carol Napier, and Jane Rae Ellis, all of Bowling Green.
